A Reflection on the Gospel from 2016 Living Liturgy:

For most of us Holy Week unfolds like many other weeks; we still contend with work, school, preparing meals, doing laundry, cranky folks, the usual triumphs and setbacks. Palm Sunday begins an extraordinary week—a week that concentrates in a few days the ultimate meaning of our whole Christian life. We must slow ourselves down and make choices so that this week doesn't go by without our taking the time to enter into its meaning. We celebrate in the liturgies what we live every day—all the dying to self that characterizes truly faithful disciples of Jesus, all the dying to self that proclaims our choice to live in God's kingdom. This choice is our way of continuing Jesus' saving mission, our way of making visible our ultimate desire: to live forever with God, united with this Jesus who suffered, died, and was buried. This Jesus who was raised. Living in this kingdom is possible when we, too, commend ourselves into God's hands.

The "kingdom of God" is not a place we can enclose, not a space we can occupy. It is a face we encounter—the very face of God, the very Presence of God. This kingdom is present whenever we wholeheartedly join ourselves with Jesus' utterance in the Garden: "not my will but yours be done." This kingdom is present whenever we speak the truth about who we know and follow, shower compassion upon those sorrowing or in need, forgive those who harm us, bring hope to the despairing, commend ourselves to God with conviction and purpose.

Jesus suffers, dies, and is buried. The gift of his death? He confers on us his kingdom and invites us to be with him in Paradise. Two kingdoms: the one of this world, the one of Jesus. Which kingdom do we choose?
