A Reflection on the Gospel from 2016 Living Liturgy:

The generosity of the Good Samaritan goes way beyond expected neighborliness and simple human compassion. He personally cares for the victim: tending to his wounds, carrying him on his own animal, caring for him at the inn. Yet even this is not enough: he leaves money for his continued care. By this parable Jesus teaches that to inherit "eternal life" we must go beyond who we love and how we love them. We must love as God loves: personally, extravagantly, continually.

Jesus' commandment of love is not impossibly far beyond us because his own life manifests here and now how to live loving relationships with others. Jesus teaches us how far we must go in loving others. Love has no limits, as Jesus teaches us how far we must go in loving others. Love has no limits, as Jesus himself illustrated by his own life. He loved even to dying for us. Our own loving one another must go this far, too. This kind of boundless love redefines who our neighbors is (everyone) and sets no limits on our time or care for others. Further, we show our love for God "with all our hearts" precisely when we love our neighbor.

Our love must be as wide as our universe and embrace all of God's beloved. Only by loving in this way can we truly be neighbor. Only by loving in this way can we, like God, be defined as love.
